Final Project Proposal

My final project will be closely related to the videogame franchise "Five Nights At Freddy's or FNAF for short. The game appeared in 2014 hitting YouTube gamer pages not soon after, including Markiplier, Jacksepticeye, and a personal favorite of mine CoryxKenshin. This boosted the popularity of the game, however, the game also helped popularize the Youtubers. The original FANAF is described as a "Point and click survival horror game" It was developed by Scott Cawthon and stretches to almost any platform.

In the original game, you play as a security guard in Freddy Fazbear's Pizzeria which contains 4 animatronics Freddy, Bonny, Chica, and Foxy, all of the animatronics can operate on their own however they can also be worn as suits.

In the game the animatronics come to "life" and their goal is to end the player's life (the security guard). The player's goal is to keep them away by closing electronic doors, using cameras connected to a tablet and lights controlled by switches, the catch is that you only have limited power so the doors cannot stay closed cameras cant be viewed all night, and the lights cannot stay on.

My Final project will be based on a Disney and FNAF "spinoff" so it will be "taking place in the real world"

Instead of Freddy, Bonney, Chica, and Foxey, I will have Mickey, Donald, Louis, Winnie the Pooh, and Baloo. I picked these characters because Freddy and Bonny I view as friends and are the main faces of their franchise so Micky and Donald make a lot of sense the last two are classics to me and if I need to draw any of them or create my artwork they will all be pretty easy to draw. I am open to developing a new franchise separate from Disney and characters if I can't use already existing ones.

I want the perspective of the website to be coming from a "secret" person who has hacked into Disney's security system. This person will go by the name "Springtrap" They have gained access to security camera recordings and are trying to release things that they have seen. Animatronics moving around after hours, chasing security guards, the power mysteriously shutting down at night and turning back on the next morning with no security guards to be seen, and the animatronics back in their original place. Springtrap has also gained access to files including animatronic blueprints showing how they are constructed. However, because Disney is such a large organization, Springtrap has had to try to release this information over and over again whilst keeping themselves hidden, because if they are found out Disney will surely come for them.

However Springtrap cant stop because it appears that lives are on the line and that Disney is keeping secrets from the world.

I like this topic because, for the better part of 10 years, this game has been making its appearance in my life, I enjoy the jump scares, and I love killing time by watching videos explaining its lore, showing easter eggs and I love watching other people play it as well.

This could become a benevolent truth because Disney is a pretty big and successful organization that already has a lot of conspiracy theories tied to it for example I've heard people talk about how Walt Disney's head is somewhere secret frozen in ice (I don't know what this means exactly)
